English Beowulf's boasts The epic poem, Beowulf, is over 3000 lines long! The poem has lots of examples of 'boasts' which were commonly used by Anglo Saxon warriors. They would gather in the mead hall and make these boasts before going into battle. The Anglo - Saxons saw them as a symbol of the warrior's bravery; the bigger the better! e.g. Only I could defeat this monster! My heart is firm, my hands are calm! Draw a picture of you as an Anglo-Saxon warrior and write your boasts around it.	DT Anglo Saxon honey and oat cakes 250g porridge oats, 125g unsalted butter, 50g chopped dried apple, 4 tbsp runny honey, 1 tsp ground cinnamon. Preheat the oven to 180C Melt the butter. Mix in the dry ingredients and then stir in the honey. Spoon 12 dollops onto a greased baking tray. Bake for about 10-12 minutes.	History  What do you think these Anglo-Saxon artefacts are? What were they used for? What are they made of? What do they tell you about Anglo-Saxon life?	Art Illuminated lettering  Images of people, animals, plants or mythological creatures were sometimes added to enhance a letter. Because many people couldn't read at the time, they were a way of communicating a story or message without using words. Transform the first letter of your name into an illuminated letter.
