

'I've learned to place my faith in my fellow citizens, especially those of the next generation, whose conviction in the equal worth of all people seems to come as second nature, and who insist on making real those principles that their parents and teachers told them were true but perhaps never fully believed themselves. This [curriculum] is an invitation to young people to remake the world once again, and to bring about, through hard work, determination and a big dose of imagination, a world that finally aligns with all that is best in us.' Barack Obama

PSHE National Curriculum Guidance

Across primary school the following themes should be studied at an age-appropriate level (as defined in our Intent):

Pupils should develop knowledge about –

- Relationships
- Difference
- Staying safe
- Rights and respect
- Changing and growing
- Managing feelings
